Rain wreaks havoc in Jammu, 3 killed

Bridges, roads damaged; ‘jhuggis’ washed away in flashfloods; cattle perish

ARTHSHARMA
JAMMU, AUGUST 26

Three persons were today killed in separate rain-related incidents across Jammu region, while several houses, bridges and roads were damaged in heavy rain and flashfloods in the past 24 hours.

A 35-year-old man, along with his cattle, was killed after the cattle shed collapsed in the Manjakote area of Rajouri district. The deceased was identified as Mohammad Shokit, a resident of Kaller Mora Mendhar, who was currently residing in Gola Nari, Kotli Kalaban, in Manjakote tehsil of Rajouri. His body was later retrieved from the debris by locals.

In Udhampur, Hamid Mohammad, a resident of Parand Moungri, died due to lightening in the Sapore area. “Another man died in a related incident in Mahore area. Our teams are on the job to retrieve the body,” Reshi Deputy Commissioner Indu Kanwal Chib told The Tribune.

Chib said several dhoks (temporary shelters) of nomads in upper reaches had been damaged in heavy rain, while some cattle also perished. “A house also collapsed in Katra area,” the DC said.

In Poornch, a Tata Sumo was stuck in a flashflood at a culvert in Chatral river in Mendhar subdivision. Locals raised an alarm and rescued the passengers and the driver from the flooded river.

Reports from Rajouri also claimed that water level increased in the Sukoth and Darhal rivers. It caused damage to several “kuchas” houses and roads in the district. A footbridge was also damaged. “We are still assessing the losses,” said Rajouri Additional Deputy Commissioner Thakur Sher Singh.

In Kathua, at least 13 residential houses were partially damaged following a landslide in Basohli area, while 15 nomads were rescued along with their livestock after flashflooding in the Ujh river.

In Jammu city, several “jhuggis” were washed away after a flashflood in a nullah in Narwal area. A retaining wall was also damaged near yard number 7 of Transport Nagar.

An important bridge over the Batla nullah connecting Digiana area with Bishnah was also washed away in flashflood, snapping road connectivity to several villages. Several areas in Jammu city were inundated in floodwater after several nullahs breached the protection walls.
Bridges swept away, villages cut off

Tamluk: Twelve bamboo bridges over the Kangsabati river for a stretch of 15km in East Midnapore have been washed away because of rising water level and discharge of water from a barrage at Mukutmanipur in Bankura.

Around 50,000 residents of at least 100 villages on one side of the river now can’t access Panskura and Serampore on the other side following the destruction of the bridges last week.

A wooden bridge connecting East Midnapore and West Midnapore over the Keleghai was also washed away last week. The bridge was at Sabang in West Midnapore. All political parties have appealed to the state government to build a new concrete bridge.

Both the Kangsabati and the Keleghai had risen because of heavy rainfall triggered by a low pressure in Bay of Bengal.

The villages cut off from the Panskura and Serampore towns include Prajabar, Sarighat, Raisahar, Paodanki, Domaghat, Maguri, Uttarsal and Koonchoki.

Sources said East Midnapore district administration officials had provided canoes to the affected people to cross the Kangsabati while the bridges were being repaired, but the residents said it would take long time for commute.

"We have to either wait for boats now or take 10-15km long detour on foot," said one villager, referring to three concrete bridges near Serampore, Panskura and Harinarayan Chowk.

"Besides, we have to trek through a lot of muck because our side of the river is not very developed," he added.
